Doug Giles is the creator and host of ClashRadio.com, a winner of seven Silver Microphone Awards and two Communicator Awards. He is a popular columnist, minister, artist, campus lecturer and author. His column is read worldwide each week on TownHall.com and his articles have also appeared in several national publications including The Washington Times, New York Times, USA Today, The Wall Street Journal and ABC News. Ann Coulter has said of Giles, "Doug Giles is a substantive and funny force for traditional values."

Doug is also the father of Hannah Giles, the 20 year-old journalist who played the role of a prostitute in the recently released videos exposing corruption within ACORN. She developed the idea behind the videos while interning at the National Journalism Center in Washington. In September, Hannah and co-star James O'Keefe released the first of several undercover videos showing ACORN staff offering advice on how to conduct numerous illegal activities. Hannah's and O'Keefe's bravery is directly responsible for the Census Bureau and numerous other agencies severing ties with ACORN. Congress also voted to strip the organization of its federal funding and the organization remains under investigation.
